Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

The first species involves a mechanically polished surface (claim 7). The second species involves a chemically or electrochemically treated surface (claim 8). The third species involves an anodized surface (claims 10-12).

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Art Unit: 3744

The claims correspond to the species listed above as indicated parenthetically above.

The following claim(s) are generic: Claims 5, 6, and 9.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: Special technical features, as described in the PCT rules, refer to those features that “define a contribution which each of the claimed inventions, considered as a whole, makes over the prior art”. In other words, if the different species lack a common feature as defined by the generic claim (aluminum body having a surface with a particular degree of reflectance) that exhibits novelty or inventiveness in view of the prior art, then lack of unity of invention is deemed to exist. In this instance, generic claim 5, for example, appears to lack novelty in view of cited references to Love, showing polished aluminum tubing, or Sukimoto et al., teaching “aluminum cylinder stock having excellent surface smoothness”¹.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
